

CAPITAL AREA WOODTURNERS

MEETING: Sat. March 13, 1993, 9:30 am
Bryant Adult and Community Education Center
2709 Popkins Lane
Alexandria, VA 22306

The March meeting will be in two parts. First, Bill Hardy, CAW member, will demonstrate his lidded boxes and, briefly, the platter and other pieces in his repertoire. Many people missed the January demonstration because the Bryant School was closed. Those who went to the school got cold standing outside, went to Earl Clement's shop, and saw a well planned and skilled demonstration. This is a follow up to that demonstration.

The second part of our meeting will be a chance for some hands-on activity. The actual projects we undertake will be up to you. We can do face plate work on two of the lathes, and on the third lathe we can do spindle work. If you have a problem, bring your gouge and some wood. Some of the experienced turners will work with you, and the other people can learn while you do. If you want to demonstrate something, bring your tools and wood to do it. Bill will give you practice with working on boxes, too. If there is no other action, Phil Brown has promised to demonstrate a bit and to show the Stocksdale gouge.

Please bring your new turnings to show at the meeting.

At our previous meeting, we saw Jane and Arthur Mason's wonderful collection of turned objects. We all gained new ideas and enjoyed the beautiful works of many turners. We appreciate the gracious hospitality the Masons showed us.

Other Events: The James Renwick Alliance will conduct their annual spring symposium and craft weekend on April 17-18.

The Smithsonian Washington Crafts Show will be held at the Mellon Auditorium, 1301 Constitution Ave. NW on April 15-18. This is a juried show of top artists in several crafts. Admission $8.

Chip Carving for Woodturners will be taught by Wayne Barton at Maryland Hall for the Creative Arts in Annapolis, MD, on April 19-23, 9 am - 4:30 pm daily. Registration may be limited; call 410-263-5544, 410-269-1087, or 301-261-1553.

W.S. Jenks at Springfield will show some turnings for us, if we wish. We will have more discussion at the meeting.
